Food Protection Managers - Effective January 1, 2019, whenever food is being prepared or served in food establishment (including temporary food establishments), the “person in charge” on the premises shall be a currently certified Food Protection Manager through one of the ANSI/CFP-accredited Food Protection Manager certification programs. A waiver of this requirement may be made for temporary food vendors serving only prepackaged foods if they possess a current Jefferson County or West Virginia statewide food handler card.

Below you will find a list of approved ANSI/Food Protection Managers Certification Programs. Please note, the exam is separate from the online training courses and is proctored.
